

JACK SILBERMAN – Producer, Director

Jack Silberman is an acclaimed documentary filmmaker whose work has been distinguished with over 60 national and international awards and been broadcast worldwide. In his 29-year career he has produced and directed films for PBS, National Geographic, Discovery Channel, Britain's Channel 4, The National Film Board of Canada, and for organizations such as UNICEF, WHO and the Aga Khan Foundation. His film Island of Whales, which was narrated by Gregory Peck, was broadcast on PBS (Nova). His film Bombies about the deadly legacy of the US secret war in Laos, was also broadcast on PBS and won first-place awards at ten film festivals. Other films include Polio Hunters for the Discovery Health Channel, The Vanishing Tattoo for National Geographic and Battle For The Trees and Raised To Be Heroes for the National Film Board of Canada. His other work includes films on sharks, dolphins and orangutans for the Discovery Channel. He has filmed documentaries on location in Laos, Sri Lanka, India, Pakistan, Kenya, Tanzania, Borneo, Bangladesh and around the world.